Professional

- 1982 to 1993. Employed at Shearson Lehman Brothers (presently Smith Barney Citigroup). While at Shearson I was a registered (series 7-licensed) stockbroker. I headed the Performance Monitor System that tracked the returns of managed accounts, developed an in-house pension administration program, and provided performance and pension assistance to individual and institutional clients.
- 1993 to present. President of Marvin Investment Management, Co., a registered investment advisory firm. My firm provides fee-based investment management services that range from full discretion investment management to financial planning services. In addition, I provide tax, pension accounting, and farm management services.
- I also provide consulting services and assist in economic analysis. These jobs have included the Tecumseh area economic development (which played a key role in attracting the new prison), economic analysis of the Grand Island banking market, and determining the economic viability of horse racing in the Hastings area. Other areas of consulting include long-term studies of tax and market-return assumptions.
- I served on the three Infrastructure Finance committees. The original committee studied financing options for the city in 2000. I also served on the most recent Infrastructure Finance committee (both the main committee and the finance workgroup committee). I have a thorough knowledge of the proposed financing options facing the city.

Family

- Since 1983 I have been married to Donna Marvin. We have three children, Katie (15), Matt (13) and Emily (3). We are both active in the community. We have served on numerous school committees, booster clubs and boards.
