FROM THE CHIEF

Citizens of Lincoln,
Mayor Beutler,
Lincoln City Council,

On behalf of the women and men of the Lincoln Police Department, I am pleased to submit the 2017 annual report. The City of Lincoln is a growing community comprised of rich diversity and passionate citizens who take ownership in their safety and security. Our agency watches for opportunities to seek input from those we serve, build collaboration and provide professional police services that build on the imbedded culture of community policing.

This report highlights the strengths of the Lincoln Police Department, provides a snapshot of significant events over the last year, and celebrates the accomplishments of our talented employees. The statistical review provides insight into crime in Lincoln and demonstrates how the information guides decisions within our organization. The efforts by our staff and volunteers, who worked so hard to prepare this report, is another way we work to be transparent.

In 2017, the Lincoln Police Department received support from the tax payers and elected officials who made sacrifices to increase our authorized staffing by adding six commissioned officers. Meeting the many needs of a city demonstrating decades of growth and geographic expanse can be difficult. Your support emphasizes the important role of public safety. I continue to be amazed by the encouragement given to our employees from those we serve. Your notes, words, and actions provide assurance and make a positive impact.

I encourage the review and analysis of the annual report. If questions arise, seek clarification. Your perspectives lead to innovative solutions that will bring improvement and make Lincoln an even better place to live.

Chief of Police,
Jeff Bliemeister

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT: SOCIAL MEDIA

In May of 2017, the Lincoln Police Department strategically began growing the department's presence on social media. Since then, the department has seen a 99% increase in followership.

Through social media the department has the ability to communicate directly with the community and push out important safety messages, traffic alerts, and crime prevention tips.

The citizens of Lincoln are able to get a glimpse behind the badge at what a day in the life of an officer is like through virtual ride-alongs called #TweetAlongs.

EXEMPLARY PROJECTS:

SWAP SPOT & VICTIM ASSISTANCE

2017 ANNUAL REPORT

SWAP SPOT

LPD officers regularly respond to thefts and robberies linked to Craigslist and other online transactions. In fact, in 2017 LPD investigated two robberies that originated as Craigslist transactions; many more similar robberies likely went unreported. In response, LPD Officer Andrew Gallagher adapted a national program designed to provide a safe location for transactions. Called "Swap Spot," this program allows individuals to meet and conduct transactions or child custody exchanges in two marked parking spots at LPD's Center Team Substation. Although police officers do not mediate transactions, surveillance cameras monitor Swap Spot exchanges in the confines of the Center Team's parking lot.

As Officer Gallagher noted, this innovative program provides citizens a safer option for conducting transactions arranged online. Hopefully, the Swap Spot will reduce future robberies and facilitate peaceful exchanges between individuals.

VICTIM ASSISTANCE

Besides changing its name, formerly Victim/Witness, the Victim Assistance Unit implemented a series of critical changes in 2017 designed to improve their services to victims. For one, the unit changed its hours and staggered its shifts to make advocates available between 7:00 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Second, the Victim Assistance Unit focused each advocate's outreach efforts, thereby creating a greater specialization and expertise among advocates. For instance, one advocate may focus on major and violent crimes, such as assaults, sexual assaults, domestic violence, and human trafficking.

According to Victim Assistance Manager Beth McQueen, her unit will begin creating programs for victims to visit courtrooms and learn how the criminal justice system will process their case. Additionally, advocates will continue researching opportunities for awareness campaigns, such as booths at local events, as well as search for grant funding opportunities. Victim Assistance hopes to strengthen its relationships with new local partners in order to broaden their ongoing victim outreach.

The sum of these changes will give Lincoln residents greater access to advocates, clearer information about the criminal justice process, and improved resources and education about how to reduce their chances of revictimization.

EXEMPLARY PROJECTS:

LINCOLN EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS CENTER RENOVATIONS

2017 witnessed the dramatic renovation of the Lincoln Emergency Communications Center (LECC). There were two primary reasons necessitating a complete remodel, according to LPD Communications Coordinator Julie Richter-Dove. First, the City's new Motorola radio system required an upgrade of the electrical service in the Center to accommodate the new equipment and technology. Second, the heating and air conditioning system was woefully inadequate, regulating vastly different temperatures across different parts of the LECC and causing occasional computer systems to overheat. In general, with the exception of minor repairs and upgrades after the Law Enforcement and Justice Center flooded in 2005, the LECC has remained largely untouched since 1995.

Given the extensive nature of these upgrades and repairs, the City decided on a complete renovation of the LECC. Communication's personnel moved to the back-up site at Fire Station #14 while construction crews tore down the walls and uprooted the floor, rebuilding the entire workspace from the ground up.

The brand new LECC will feature several upgrades. First, the technology will accommodate the new Motorola radio system and other public safety communications technologies, including a new server room. This upgrade will give dispatchers more space at their console while eliminating any ambient noise and heat emitted by the computers. The Motorola system will meet all federal interoperability standards, allowing LPD to talk to other agencies, even those on different radio systems. Additionally, the new system will provide law enforcement with encryption capabilities.

Each dispatch console will now house eight adjustable monitors, ergonomic chairs, and adjustable desks allowing a dispatcher to both sit and stand. Also, each console will feature climate control settings, including heat and fans. The capacity of the LECC has expanded from fourteen consoles to eighteen, and the LECC now includes lockers and mail slots that will be located in the break room. The LECC features dimmable LED lights, sound-absorbing flooring, and walls constructed from foam covered in fabric to reduce ambient noise.

After LECC staff resume operations at LPD Headquarters in the Spring of 2018, the back-up site will be upgraded with Motorola consoles at each of the 14 positions at the site. Once all work is completed at both sites the LECC could simultaneously run their primary and back-up communications centers in the event of a large incident, up to thirty-two dispatchers could be activated and operating at once if staffing allowed. For now, the LECC team anxiously awaits to return and settle into their brand new workspace at LPD Headquarters.

EXEMPLARY PROJECTS:

OPERATION TIPPING POINT

2017 ANNUAL REPORT

Over the last three years, Lincoln has witnessed an increase in gang membership, gang-related crime, and retaliatory gang violence. For instance, in 2017, LPD documented 1,007 gang-related incidents while also recognizing that many more incidents likely went unreported or were not classified as gang-related. The grim fact is that gangs are well-established in Lincoln. LPD currently tracks around 35 active local gangs and more than 30 additional gangs with heavy influence in the Lincoln area, 765 documented gang members, and 478 gang associates.

LPD added two investigators and a supervisor dedicated to investigating and suppressing gang activity and crime since 2014. However, knowing that suppression alone cannot combat growth in gang membership and violence, LPD worked with numerous community organizations to coordinate Operation Tipping Point (OTP) in the summer of 2014, a project uniting suppression efforts with prevention and education strategies.

The goal of Operation Tipping Point is straightforward yet challenging: identify juveniles at risk for joining gangs, and then divert them by connecting them to resources and services proven to decrease the likelihood of gang membership, such as after-school activities, mentors, and meaningful pursuits and hobbies.

Led by Sergeant Jeff Sorensen and Gang Outreach Specialist Matt Baker, OTP first partnered with UNL's Center on Children, Families, and the Law to identify the most prevalent risk factors for gang membership in Lincoln Public Schools. The Center's report identified individual, family, and community risk factors, as well as schools featuring high rates of these factors. OTP then sent Baker into these schools and neighborhoods to make contact with juveniles referred by school personnel, community members, and even Lincoln police officers. OTP focused on students aged 11-15, a formative age at which juveniles are at greater risk for developing strong, long-term ties to gangs.

In 2017, OTP served 136 juveniles and connected them to programs such as the Lighthouse, Joven Noble Youth Group, the Bay, the Salvation Army, neighborhood YMCAs, and various community recreation centers. Moreover, OTP has broadened its focus to include larger community outreach. Baker has set up Tipping Point clubs in schools to help teach kids life skills and good decision-making, but also to engage the students in conversations about current events. Additionally, Baker meets with students at Joven Noble twice a week, conducting gang resistance education. Finally, Baker also helped organize a basketball league at Belmont Recreation Center in conjunction with the Boys and Girls Club of Lincoln.

Although LPD is still analyzing the overall effect of OTP, Baker and Sorensen have witnessed the program's profound impact on several individuals and their families. Without OTP, these students likely would have developed a stronger gang identity and solidified their future as Lincoln gang members. Instead, with the help of OTP prevention and education, these juveniles were diverted into settings that provided them with positive role models and peers, as well as activities that strengthened their ties to family, school, and the Lincoln community. Indeed, OTP has proven to be the "tipping point" in the lives of numerous Lincoln juveniles.

IACP/DUPONT KEVLAR SURVIVORS' CLUB HONOREE

In 2017, Officer Angela Sands was chosen as the International Association of Chiefs of Police/DuPont KEVLAR Survivors' Club Honoree at the 124th IACP Annual Conference and Exposition in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Notably, Officer Sands is the first female officer to be inducted into this club.

On November 29, 2015, Officer Sands responded to assist Sergeant Brad Junker, who was contacting a suspect with outstanding arrest warrants. Officer Sands and Sergeant Junker were attempting to arrest and search the suspect when the suspect began resisting and assaulting the officers. As Officer Sands and Sergeant Junker fought with the suspect, he grabbed a gun from his waistband. The suspect fired the gun, hitting a third officer in the arm.

Officer Sands and Sergeant Junker fought to control the suspect's hand that held the gun, attempting to disable the suspect from firing at the other officer again. As the struggle continued, the suspect fired a shot point-blank at Officer Sands' heart. The round passed through her coat, her badge, and was finally deflected by the metal plates in her bulletproof vest. Officer Sands and Sergeant Junker returned fire, eliminated the threat, and prevented the suspect from harming additional officers and civilians.

Despite her own injuries, Officer Sands was able to assess and treat the injured officer's gunshot wound because she was wearing her bulletproof vest. In 2016, Officer Sands was honored with LPD's highest award, the Medal of Honor. This incident and Sands' induction into the Survivors' Club are sobering reminders that officers should use body armor every day and every shift. The award also highlights the heroic efforts police officers exhibit while serving their communities.

PRO PATRIA AWARD

In April of 2017, LPD was given the annual Pro Patria award by the Nebraska Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR). According to LPD Officer Andrew Gallagher, the Pro Patria Award is the highest award given to an employer at the state level, and the ESGR only recognizes three organizations each year (one small private sector organization, one large private sector organization, and one public sector organization). More than fifty LPD officers have either served in the military or are in the Reserve. This prestigious award signifies LPD's continued commitment to supporting our men and women who serve in the military and National Guard and Reserve, as well as recruiting veterans.

MARKSMANSHIP AWARDS

Awarded to officers who have maintained a score of at least 95% for three consecutive qualifications.

QUALITY SERVICE AUDIT

Since 1993, the Lincoln Police Department has been participating in a survey to gauge citizen satisfaction with the delivery of police services. The Quality Service Audit was developed in conjunction with Gallup, Inc. and it continues to be a valuable tool for both officers and administrators. Officers hired after 1991 are designated as participants in the survey and receive feedback from citizens on their performance. The QSA is a telephone survey which is conducted by student interns, volunteers and recruit officers. Contact is made with citizens who have had a recent police contact, whether they are a crime victim or the recipient of a traffic ticket.

The Traffic Enforcement Unit is commanded by Captain Todd Kocian and supervised by Sergeant Mike Muff. The unit is currently staffed with eight officers. These officers specialize in enforcing traffic laws throughout the city.

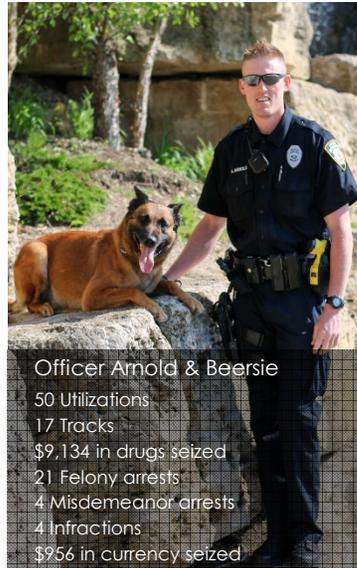

These officers also work to address specific problems in residential neighborhoods. The Traffic Unit regularly deploys a "Speed Trailer" which has the ability to record traffic volume and speed in problem areas. This, in turn, allows the officers to assess the need for additional enforcement. The unit receives grant assistance from the Nebraska Office of Highway Safety to help their programs achieve success. Some of the major projects conducted by the Traffic Unit throughout the year are the: Spring and Fall School Zone Traffic Enforcement and National Click It or Ticket Mobilizations.

Members of the Traffic Unit also serve on the following committees: Lincoln/Lancaster County Safe Kids/Safe Communities Coalition, Safety Training Option Program, City Transportation Liaison Committee, Mayors Pedestrian/Bicycle Task Force and I80 Incident Management Committee. Members of the unit also provide traffic safety presentations to students at various driver education programs throughout the city. Motor escorts are provided by the unit throughout the year, these include the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics, the Lincoln Marathon and the occasional fallen soldier escort.

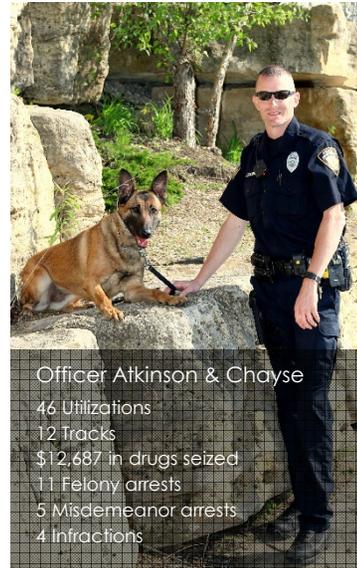

In addition to the traffic related duties, this unit is also responsible for the investigation of serious injury and fatality motor vehicle accidents. Investigator Grant Powell is the lead Accident Reconstructionist for the department. Five other investigators from the various police teams comprise the balance of the six member Accident Reconstruction Team. They are highly trained and use specialized equipment to conduct the investigation and forensic mapping of traffic crash scenes. This is in addition to their normal assignments. Captain Todd Kocian, Sergeant Mike Muff, Sergeant Derek Dittman and Investigator Grant Powell are certified by the Accreditation Commission for Traffic Accident Reconstruction (ACTAR). The quality of work produced by this team is some of the finest in the state.

K-9 UNIT
